The Fight to the Death.

AS TOM DIXON SEES THE FUTURE STORM.

It Will Be a World-Wide Drama, Stormy and Tragic.

THE HOPES AND ASPIRATIONS OF RESTLESS COUNTLESS MILLIONS.

NEW YORK, April 19, 1891.

Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., preceded his sermon this morning on "Ecclesiastical Owls" by the following review of current events:

THE COMING GREAT BATTLE.

The last fifty years may be denominated the Era of Corporate Power. The apostle of Adam Smith and Herbert Spencer have had their day in the economic world. We have had an era of unlimited competition in the domain of commerce. The result has been somewhat startling considering the prophecies of the great political economists. The millenium is yet afar. In fact, a free cut-throat competition in trade seems to have brought us to a condition that has produced just the opposite effect from that predicted. Competition has been overdone. It has destroyed itself. Monopoly in trade has been the inevitable result.

The Corporation has been master of the forces of our civilization for the past twenty-five years. They have made laws. They have made and unmade the policies of governments. Our real rulers have not been legislators, governors, Congressmen and Presidents. Our real rulers have been corporate directors, bank officers, railroad presidents, and mining kings. We are entering upon a new era in the history of our political economy. It bids fair to be an era of striking events. It will be, in fact, a world-wide drama. No lover of his fellow-man can be indifferent to the issues of that conflict. Upon them hang the hopes and aspirations of countless millions. In them are bound up the destinies of generations yet unborn. The historian who preserves for us the record will have material big with the pathos and tragedy of the race. It is to be a battle of Giants. Billions of dollars, backed by greed and lust of power, the appetites and passions and ambitions of men of daring genius armed with the traditions and superstitions of centuries on the one side. The toiling, restless, hoping millions, pressing forward with resistless sweep to the higher destiny of the race, on the other.

The men who have built up the gigantic monopolies that to-day form the governing centres of our commercial life are not the villians and thieves the ranting agitator would have us believe. They have not, as a rule, committed crimes in the process of gathering their fortunes. They are men of business genius, of daring enterprise, of matchless skill and untiring industry. The millionaire kings of monopoly have won their position in the fierce battle of the competitive system. They are not to blame. They are kings because they have been crowned with superior strength and daring. If our commercial system is right, these men do not deserve the curses and hatred of the masses. They have done only what those who curse would have done had they been given the opportunity and power. The signs of the times indicate that the future of corporations is to be a stormy if not a tragic one. The fight to the death is now on. We see this future of storm outlining itself—

1. In the assaults through the courts. Hitherto corporate powers seem to have been masters of the situation in almost every battle at law.

The backbone of the sugar trust has been recently broken in the courts. Charters have been revoked and havoc played with vast fortunes figured on paper. The time was when a corporation was regarded as an irresponsible, soulless moloch that could violate the rights of life with impunity in its march to fortune. Now the corporation that endangers life or limb is in danger of annihilation if a jury's verdict is taken as final. The millionaire directors of one of the richest railroads in America are now under indictment for the loss of the lives of its employees in the recent tunnel disaster. The pressure of public sentiment was such that their indictment was forced on the Grand Jury. It is not difficult to read the meaning of that sentiment of deep and bitter hostility. Forty years ago such men were considered the highest order of public benefactors. Now they are the object of hatred and suspicion to millions.

2. The conflicts between organized labor and organized capital are becoming more and more bitter and brutal; bitter on the part of the laborer, brutal on the part of the corporations. The New York Central Railroad, with its prestige, its superb organization, its millions and its influence with other corporations, succeeded in crushing the Knights of Labor in a deliberately planned and brutally led assault. When the job was complete, Mr. Webb, with perfectly fiendish delight, proceeded to dance a jig on their quivering hide. The whole performance from beginning to the end, while it was legitimate war, was inhuman and brutal, and only made the gulf that separates organized capital from the toiling millions wider, deeper and more utterly impassible. In the recent conflict at Morewood between the miners and the capitalists, dozens of men were shot down in cold blood. The accounts we read were evidently all sent out from sources friendly to the owners of the mines who were responsible for this butchery. We are told these men were rioting. If

WHO PAYS THE EXPENSE?

The New Berne Journal very timely and pertinently says:

"The question has been raised, 'who pays the expenses of the President's pleasure trip?' It will cost over $30,000—not a large sum for a great Government to pay, but rather large for an individual to spend in a few weeks.

No, neither Harrison nor the government pays. The President of the people has accepted a free special train fitted up in magnificent and royal style, from the Railroad magnates. This is an insult to the people. Harrison accepts favors from Railroad magnates. Then whose President is he? The people must elect a President in '92 of the people and for the people.

An exchange says John James Ingalls, having procured thirty acres of land and hired two field laborers, only wants a mortgage to make him a tipical farmer of the West. Ex-Senator Ingalls may cover himself with hay-seed and talk about the crops, but it takes more than that to make a farmer.

It pays to be a humbug. P. T. Barnum, the big circus man, left an estate worth $5,000,000. Who dug that money from the ground? For that is where it all comes from.

Should Italy and the United States go to war it would be a sort of eagle and monkey affair. But they are not "agoing."

There's a heap of work for the political fool killer this year, and he can't return from his long vacation too soon.

Resolutions of Respect.

UNIVERSITY OF NO. CA.,
Chapel Hill, April 10, 1891.

The Dialetic and Philanthropic Societies of the University, in joint session assembled, desiring to honor the memory of their friend, the late illustrious Governor of the Commonwealth and President of the Board of Trustees of the University, appointed the following committee to prepare suitable resolutions: Messrs. M. J. Pearsall, A. H. Patterson, J. V. Lewis, F. C. Mebane and W. E. Rollins, of the Dialectic Society, and Messrs. Shepard Bryan, Geo. Ransom, W. W. Ashe, F. H. Bachelor and R. R. Eason, of the Philanthropic Society.

The committee reported as follows:

"In the death of Daniel G. Fowle the State has lost a brilliant, faithful and honorable servant, society a pure and loyal member and education a zealous friend. As soldier, statesman and civilian he served his country well. His personal honor and the honor of his people were dear to his heart. He wore the white flower of a blameless life, for he loved the things that were pure.

"His conspicuous devotion to constitutional liberty and his refusal to subordinate the judicial to the military authority entitled him to the lasting gratitude of the State. His zeal for education, and his personal interest in all our educational institutions have endeared him especially to young men seeking intellectual culture. His constant watchfulness over the interests of North Carolina, and his fearless advocacy of her rights, have marked him as a loyal and patriotic son.

"We mourn his sudden and untimely death as a great shock and a loss to the State, and we tender to his stricken family our earnest and sincere sympathy."

The resolutions were unanimously adopted, and it was ordered that copies be sent to the family of Gov. Fowle, as well as to the press for publication.

Roseboro Dots.

(Special Correspondent.)

March 18th, 1891.

Mr. Editor, it was been some time since our little town has been heard from through your valuable paper and we have decided to give you a few items for this issue.

The charter for Roseboro has been received, and now when you come to town you will have to take off your hat at the town limits and be very polite to every one you meet, especially the Mayor and "City Fathers."

Miss Geneva and Mamie Higgins with gave us a very pleasant call one day last week.

We regret to lose from our midst that clever gentleman, Dr. C. W. Corriher, who will leave about the 10th of May, and will locate at China Grove, N. C., where he will practice his profession. We wish him much success through life.

The closing exercises of Hayne Academy will take place the 22d of May.

The Demorest Medal Contest of Bethel Church have accepted an invitation to address the people of Parkersburg on the subject of Prohibition on Friday night, May the 22d at 8 o'clock. The public are invited.

We would like for the Autryville "Correspondent" to tell us in his next communication why your young druggist visits Autryville so often?

Mr. Purdie Spell, son of Sheriff Spell happened to an accident that came near being fatal a few days since. On the last second Sunday as he was going to church his mule became frightened and ran away and threw him out of the buggy and knocked himself senseless for some time. When last heard from he was improving. SWINBURNE.

BETTER THAN CRYSTAL.

DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON ABOUT RELIGIOUS EXCELLENCIES.

The Natural Crystal is the Star of the Mountain and the Queen of the Cave.

BUT THE CRYSTAL OF RELIGION EXCELS EVERYTHING.

NEW YORK, April 19.—The eagerness to hear Dr. Talmage's sermons at The Christian Herald services on Sunday evenings, in this city, continues unabated. As usual there was this evening a dense mass of people waiting outside the Academy of Music long before the hour for commencement, and every seat in the huge building was occupied in a few minutes after the doors were opened. Dr. Talmage had preached to an immense audience in the morning in the Brooklyn Academy of Music. His text was, "The crystal cannot equal it" (Job xxviii, 7).

Many of the precious stones of the Bible have come to prompt recognition. But for the present I take up the less valuable crystal. Job, in my text, compares saving wisdom with a specimen of topaz. An infidel chemist or mineralogist would pronounce the latter worth more than the former, but Job makes an intelligent comparison, looks at religion and then looks at the crystal, and pronounces the former as of far superior value to the latter, exclaiming in the words of my text, "The crystal cannot equal it."

THE EXACTNESS OF RELIGION.

Now, it is not a part of my sermonic design to depreciate the crystal, whether it be found in Cornish mine or Hartz mountain or Mammoth cave or tinkling among the pendants of the chandeliers of a palace. The crystal is the star of the mountain; it is the queen of the cave; it is the eardrop of the hills; it finds its heaven in the diamond. Among all the pages of natural history there is no page more interesting to me than the page crystallographic. But I want to show you that Job was right when, taking religion in one hand and the crystal in the other, he declared that the former is of far more value and beauty than the latter, recommending it to all the people and to all the ages, declaring, "The crystal cannot equal it."

In the first place, I remark that religion is superior to the crystal in exactness. That shapeless mass of crystal against which you accidentally dashed your foot is laid out with more exactness than any earthly city. There are six styles of crystallization, and all of them divinely ordained. Every crystal has mathematical precision. God's geometry reaches through it, and it is a square, or it is a rectangle, or it is a rhomboid, or in some way it hath a mathematical figure. Now, religion beats that in the simple fact that spiritual accuracy is more beautiful than material accuracy.

God's attributes are exact. God's law exact. God's decrees exact. God's management of the world exact. Never counting wrong, though he counts the grass blades, and the stars, and the sands and the cycles. His providences never dealing with us perpendicularly when those providences ought to be oblique, nor lateral when they ought to be vertical. Everything in our life arranged without any possibility of mistake. Each life a six sided prism. Born at the right time, dying at the right time. There are no "happen so's" in our theology. If I thought this was a slipshod universe I would go crazy. God is not an anarchist. Law, order, symmetry, precision, a perfect square, a perfect rectangle, a perfect rhomboid, a perfect circle. The edge of God's robe of government never frays out. There are no loose screws in the world's machinery.

It did not just happen that Napoleon was attacked with indigestion at Borodino so that he became incompetent for the day. It did not just happen that John Thomas, the missionary, on a heathen island, waiting for an outfit and orders for another missionary tour, received that outfit and those orders in a box that floated ashore, while the ship and the crew that carried the box were never heard of. The barking of F. W. Robertson's dog, he tells us, led to a line of events which brought him from the army into the Christian ministry, where he served God with world renowned usefulness. It did not merely happen so. I believe in a particular providence. I believe God's geometry may be seen in all our life more beautifully than in crystallography. Job was right. "The crystal cannot equal it."

THE TRANSPARENCY OF RELIGION.

Again I remark that religion is superior to the crystal in transparency. We know not when or by whom glass was first discovered. Beads of it have been found in the tomb of Alexander Severus. Vases of it are brought up from the ruins of Herculaneum. There were female adornments made out of it three thousand years ago—those adornments found now attached to the mummies of Egypt. A great many commentators believe that my text means glass. What would we do without the crystal? The crystal in the window to keep out the storm and let in the day; the crystal over the watch defending its delicate machinery, yet allowing us to see the hour; the crystal of the telescope by which the astronomer brings distant worlds so near he can inspect them. Oh, the triumphs of the crystals in the celebrated windows of Rouen and Salisbury!

But there is nothing so transparent in a crystal as in our holy religion. It is a transparent religion. You put it to your eye and you see man—his sin, his soul, his destiny. You look at God and you see something of the grandeur of his character. It is a transparent religion. Infidels tell us it is opaque! Do you know why they tell us it is opaque? It is because they are blind. The natural man receiveth not the things of God because they are spiritually discerned. There is no trouble with the crystal; the trouble is with the eyes which try to look through it. We pray for vision, Lord, that our eyes might be opened. When the eye salve cures our blindness then we find that religion is transparent.

It is a transparent Bible. All the mountains of the Bible come out—Sinai, the mountain of the law; Pisgah, the mountain of prospect; Olivet, the mountain of instruction; Calvary, the mountain of sacrifice. All the rivers of the Bible come out—Hidekel, or the river of paradisaical beauty; Jordan, or the river of holy chrism; Cherith, or the river of prophetic supply; Nile, or the river of palaces, and the pure river of life from under the throne, clear as crystal. While reading this Bible after our eyes have been touched by grace we find it all transparent, and the earth rocks, now with crucifixion agony and now with judgment terror, and Christ appears in some of his two hundred and fifty-six titles, as far as I can count them—the bread, the rock, the captain, the commander, the conqueror, the star, and on and beyond any capacity of mine to rehearse them. Transparent religion!

THE BEAUTY OF RELIGION.

The providence that seemed dark before becomes pellucid. Now you find God is not trying to put you down. Now you understand why you lost that child and why you lost your property; it was to prepare you for eternal treasures. And why sickness came, it being the precursor of immortal juvenescence. And now you understand why they lied about you and tried to drive you hither and thither. It was to put you in the glorious company of such men as Ignatius, who when he went out to be destroyed by the lions said, "I am the wheat, and the teeth of the wild beasts must first grind me before I can become pure bread for Jesus Christ;" the company of such men as Polycarp, who when standing in the midst of the amphitheater waiting for the lions to come out of their cave and destroy him, and the people in the galleries jeering and shouting, "The Eons for Polycarp," replied, "Let them come on," and then stooping down toward the cave where the wild beasts were roaring to get out, "Let them come on." Ah, yes, it is persecution to put you in glorious company; and while there are many things that you will have to postpone to the future world for explanation, I tell you that it is the whole tendency of your religion to unravel and explain and interpret and illumine and irradiate. Job was right. It is a glorious transparency. "The crystal cannot equal it."

I remark again that religion surpasses the crystal in its beauty. That lump of crystal is put under the magnifying glass of the crystallographer, and he sees in it indescribable beauty—snowdrift and splinters of hoar frost and corals and wreaths and stars and crowns and castellations of conspicuous beauty. The fact is that crystal is so beautiful that I can think of but one thing in all the universe that is so beautiful, and that is the religion of the Bible. No wonder this Bible represents that religion as the daybreak, as the apple blossoms, as the glitter of a king's banquet. It is the joy of the whole earth.

TALK MORE OF THE CROWN.

People talk too much about their cross and not enough about their crown. Do you know the Bible mentions a cross but twenty-seven times, while it mentions a crown eighty times? Ask that old man what he thinks of religion. He has been a close observer. He has been culturing an æsthetic taste. He has seen the sunrises of a half century. He has been an early riser. He has been an admirer of cameos and corals and all kinds of beautiful things. Ask him what he thinks of religion, and he will tell you, "It is the most beautiful thing I ever saw." "The crystal cannot equal it."

Beautiful in its symmetry. When it presents God's character it does not present Him as having love like a great protuberance on one side of his nature, but makes that love in harmony with his justice—a love that will accept all those who come to Him, and a justice that will by no means clear the guilty. Beautiful religion in the sentiment it implants! Beautiful religion in the hope it kindles! Beautiful religion in the fact that it proposes to garland and enthrone and emparadise an immortal spirit. Solomon says it is a lily. Paul says it is a crown. The Apocalypse says it is a fountain kissed of the sun. Ezekiel says it is a foliaged cedar. Christ says it is a bridegroom come to fetch home a bride. While Job in the text takes up a whole vase of precious stone—the topaz and the sapphire and the chrysoprasus—and he takes out of this beautiful vase just one crystal, and holds it up until it gleams in the warm light of the eastern sky, and he exclaims, "The crystal cannot equal it."

Oh, it is not a stale religion, it is not a stupid religion, it is not a toothless hag, as some seem to have represented it; it is not a Meg Merrilies, with shriveled arm, come to scare the world. It is the fairest daughter of God, heiress of all his wealth. Her cheek the morning sky; her voice the music of the south wind; her step the dance of the sea. Come and woo her. The spirit and the bride say come, and whosoever will, let him come. Do you agree with Solomon and say it is a lily? Then pluck it and wear it over your heart. Do you agree with Paul and say it is a crown? Then let this hour be your coronation. Do you agree with the Apocalypse and say it is a springing fountain? Then come and slake the thirst of your soul. Do you believe with Ezekiel and say it is a foliaged cedar? Then come under its shadow. Do you believe with Christ and say it is a bridegroom come to fetch home a

THE OPINION OF OUR READERS ON THE VARIOUS TOPICS OF THE DAY.

We offer this column to our readers in which to discuss topics of interest and profit to them.—ED.

Shall Women Preach?

MR. EDITOR—According to promise I forward you the following upon the subject of "Woman's Preaching"; not that I desire to enter the arena of controversy, nor that I arrogate to myself the sole and exclusive right to correct errors now taught for truths from God's word.

But when I see, as I did not long since, in your paper, a non-professor of religion contending for the faith once delivered to the saints, and a minister of a denomination which frequently boasts of its numerical strength contending for the opposite I cannot, or will not remain silent, let the consequences be what they may. And again, when I see the State Organ of this denomination virtually silent upon this subject, and one of its laymen seriously alone, and that in political newspaper, manfully battling for the truth, I unhesitatingly seize my pen and gladly commend Dr. T. B. Kingsbury for his gallant fight for, and upholding, the truth. God bless him and encourage him.

And when we read over the lists of delegates to the various Woman's Suffrage Conventions, and our eyes rest upon the following: Rev. Alice Dolittle and the Rev. See-saw Saymuch, and Rev. Annie Longtongue, clamorous "for the burial and oblivion, of the memory of that old bachelor crank Paul." I say when we behold such is it not time that Southern men at least should stop and think? And when we see upon the one hand a woman of seeming refinement, of apparent modest retirement, and professionally pious enter the sacred desk of God and pathetically appeal to men in Christ's name until tears unbidden roll down the cheeks of those unused to weep, again is it not time that we should enquire, are we right in throwing the weight and power of our influence against her, or at least not silence her in the pulpit?

Mr. Editor, these questions have been by me long since settled, and hoping that the evidence which satisfied me may be useful in correcting the errors of others, is the motive which prompts the writing of this.

Now if 1st Timothy, 2d chapter, 11th and 12, which says: "Let the woman learn in silence with all subjection. But I suffer not a woman to teach or usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence," were the only evidence of God's word, bearing upon this subject there might be some grounds for contending that Paul was speaking of what he himself allowed, and even then it would be assumption, there would be no evidence of it.

But when we turn to 1st Corinthians, 14th chapter and 34th: "Let your women keep silent in the churches, for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as also saith the law," we conclude that if she is preaching she is not silent, and if not permitted to speak then she violates the command. Now is there any escape from this?

But it seems that the spirit anticipated through Paul the erroneous modern construction, which led him to be more emphatic in the 35th verse, which concludes thus: "For it is a shame for woman to speak in the church."

Now can this language mean anything else than what it says? If so then I must confess that there can be no reliance whatever placed in language as a vehicle for the conveyance of our thoughts; and it seems to me that any man or woman who would try to make this language mean anything else than what it says, would unhesitatingly contend that white was black, or vice versa, if the progress of his or her cause demanded it, or even contend that God's denunciation of wrath were promises of wrath. Yea, that His prohibition were absolute license.

But, says one: "I heard Rev. Alice Saymuch preach and she was a pious woman, and she says God has called her to preach, now what are you going to do about that?"

Why I would only refer you to the 37th verse of the same chapter, which reads as follows: "If any man (or woman, I say) THINK himself to be a prophet or spiritual, let him acknowledge that the things that I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord."

Now if he (or she) acknowledge Paul's writings to be the commandments of God, then does not God command her to keep silence in the church? Now, my advocates of woman's preaching, which do you think most liable to be mistaken or deluded, Paul, in his claim to inspiration, or Rev. Alice Saymuch, in her call to preach?

Now, will you array yourself against the inspiration of God's word, or forsake your error? Have the candor and manhood to do one or the other, for in verse 33 we are told that "God is not the author of confusion but of peace," therefore He would not inspire Paul to prohibit woman's preaching and then call her to do so. Nor can you believe He did, therefore somebody else's call. Now which is the most liable to do this, Paul or the woman?

But, says another, "she has done so much good, and god seems to be with her."

Now I confess she has said "Lord, Lord!" and "prophisied in his name and done many wonderful works" by making many intelligent men and women believe Paul mistaken—rather than herself; but has she cast out devils? There have been those in the past who have even done this, and yet the Lord said unto them, "depart from me ye workers of iniquity, for I NEVER knew you."

Why? "Not every one that saith Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but they that do the will of my father which is in heaven."—Matthew 7; 21-23.

Now is it his will for woman to preach? If so, give me "a thus saith the Lord" and I am silent. If it is there, it can be found, if not, then woe to the man who dares to put it there.—Rev. 22; 18.

Another asks, "is it wrong for me so advocate her preaching?" Listen to Gal. 1; 8—"But though me or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that we have preached unto you let him be accused." Now did the Gospel Paul preached allow women to preach? If not, though an angel from heaven preach any other let him be accused. Again, Jno. 2nd, 1; 9-11—"For if there come any unto you and bring not this doctrine receive him not, &c., for he that biddeth him God speed is partaker of his evil deeds."

Much more can be said upon this subject, and will, if necessary.

WAYNE COUNTY.

A Cold-Blooded Murder.

DOBBERSVILLE, April 18.—[Special.—This community was shocked yesterday by the shocking news that a brother had murdered a brother under their parental roof. The two sons of Mr. John Jordan, Dawson and Charles, got into a dispute in the kitchen on Friday morning while making a fire in the store. The latter split the former's skull with a hatchet. He died in a few hours.

X.

The Goldshoro Argus gives the following account of the dreadful affair which is fuller than that given by our correspondent:

The news of a distressing fratricide reached this city yesterday from Grantham's township, occurring near the Sampson line, on Friday morning, the parties being Chas. Jordan, 16 years old, and Dawson Jordan, 22 years old, sons of Mr John A. Jordan, and living with their parents on the farm. It seems that the two were in the barnyard preparing to go out to plant cotton and Dawson told Charley to get a basket of seed, which the latter did not go about promptly, and thereupon Dawson started upon him with a piece of split board or light scantling and struck him, at which Charley picked up the hatchet and cut Dawson through the temple into the hollow of the mouth. Dawson died within an hour, and Charley, after praying with his distracted mother and making peace with his dying brother, left the community. Dawson was buried yesterday.

For the next thirty days, in order to put THE WEEKLY STATE CHRONICLE within the reach of every thoughtful Democrat in the State, I will agree to send it to any address for one year for One Dollar, cash in advance. I intend to publish all the news in condensed form; to give a bird's eye view of the political situation in every State and county; to have communications from the best writers in the State upon current topics; to give a solid page of editorial comment upon public questions, and to give the fullest summary of industrial progress in the State. Improvements will be made which will make THE CHRONICLE a valuable and interesting visitor to every family in the State.
Sample copies will be sent free on application. Subscribe to your local paper first, and then send $1 for THE CHRONICLE, which is a live State paper, one year; 75 cents for six months. Address the editor,

Merit Wins.
We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. For sale by DR. R. H. HOLLIDAY, Druggist, Clinton, and Dr. J. R. SMITH, Mount Olive, N. C.

GEORGE WASHINGTON WAS PASSING TROUGH NORTH CAROLINA.

Entries in His Private Diary About the Trip.'

[The Advocate.]

A few weeks ago, Washington's Diary on his return through North Carolina was copied in the Advocate. Perhaps readers in the eastern part of the State may be interested in reading the Diary of his tour Southward. we copy, literally abbreviations, bad spelling, etc. The President's rule was to accept no offer of hospitality, in the way of entertaining himself and servants; but to pay in every case. This will explain an allusion in the extract, as well as his freedom in criticising his lodging places. Besides, he did not write these hurried notes of his journey for publication.

These extracts are taken from "Washington's Private Diaries," a thin Octavo volume of 248 pages, published by the "Historical Society," in Richmond, Va, 1861. Edited by Bensin J. Lossing.

JAS. H. CARLISLE.

Spartingburg, S. C.

Saturday, April 17th, (1791): * * * * Halifax is the first town I came to after passing the line between the two states, and is about 20 miles from it. To this place vessels by the aid of Oars and setting poles are brought, for the produce, which comes to this place, and others along the river; and may be carried 8 or 10 miles higher to the falls, which are neither great nor of much extent;—above these (which are called the great falls) there are others, but none but what may, with a little improvement be passed. This town stands upon high ground; and it is the reason given for not placing it at the head of the navigation there being none but low ground between it, and the falls. It seems to be in a decline, and does not, it is said, contain a thousand souls.

Sunday 17th:—Col. Ashe, the Representative of the district in which this town stands, and several others, gentlemen, called upon, and invited me to partake of a dinner which the inhabitants were desirous of seeing me at; I accepting it dined with them accordingly.

MONDAY 18th;—Set out by six o'clock, dined at a small house kept by one Slaughter, 22 miles from Halifax, and lodged at Tarborough, 18 miles further.

This place is less than Halifax, but more lively and thriving: it is situated on Tar River, which goes into Pamlico Sound, and is crossed at the Town, by means of a bridge, a great heigh from the water, and notwithstanding the freshes rise sometimes, nearly to the arch. Corn, Porke, and some Tar are the exports from it. We were received at this place by as good a salute as could be given by one piece of artillery.

TUESDAY 19th: At 6 o'clock I left Tarborough, accompanied by some of the most respectable people of the place for a few miles—dined at a trifling place, called Greenville, 25 miles distant —and lodged at one Allans's 14 miles further, a very indifferent house without stabling which, for the first time since I commenced my Journey, were obliged to stand without cover. Greenville is on Tar River, and the exports the same as from Tarborough with a greater proportion of tar—for the lower down, the greater number and in spite of every endeavor, which could comport with decent civility, to excuse myself from it, they would attend me to Newbern. Col Allan did the same.

This town is situated at the confluence of the rivers, Neuse and Trent, and though low, is pleasant. Vessels drawing more than 9 feet water, cannot get up loaded. It stands on a good deal of ground, but the buildings are sparce, and altogether of wood; some of which are large and look well. The number of Souls are about 2,000. Its exports consist of Corn, Tobacco, Pork, but principally of Naval Stores and lumber.

THURSDAY 21st: Dined with the Citizens at a public dinner given by them; and went to a dancing assembly in he evening, both of which was at what they called the Palace, formerly the Government House, and a good brick building, but now, hastening to Ruins. The company at both was numerous as the tar makers are there. This article is contrary to all ideas, one would entertain on the subject, rolled as to tobacco by an axis which goes through both heads—one horse draws two barrels in this manner.

WEDNESDAY, 20th: Left Allan's before breakfast, and under a misapperhension, went to a Col. Allan's, supressing it to be public house; where we were very kindly and well entertained without knowing it was at his expence, until it was two late to rectify the mistake. After breakfasting, and feeding our horses here, we proceeded on, and crossing the river, Neuse, 11 miles further, arrived in Newbern to dinner. At this ferry which is 10 miles from Newbern, we were met by a small party of Horse; the district Judge, (Mr. Litgreave) and many of the principal inhabitants of Newbern, who conducted us into town, to exceeding good lodging. It ought to have been mentioned, that another small party of horse under one Simpson met us at Greenville, latter there were about 70 ladies.

T is town by Water, is about 70 miles from the Sea, but in a direct line the entrance of the river, not over 35, and to the nearest Seaboard not more than 20, or 25. Upon the River Neuse, and 80 miles above Newbern, the Conventeon of the CLINTON, N. C.,—APRIL 23, 1891.

The Wilson Advance, which was recently purchased by Mr. C. F. Wilson, the former local editor, is out in a handsome new dress. It is as neat as a pin. We congratulate the editor upon the improvement, and Wilson upon having such a paper. The Advance was widely read in this county six or seven years ago, when Mr. Josephus Daniels was editor.

We are glad to see it announced that the State Chronicle is to be enlarged and improved. The success of that paper has been phenominal. It is only one year and one month old, yet to-day it is at the head of the list of State dailies, both in point of merit and circulation. The Chronicle is the mouth piece of no clique or ring. It is a paper for the masses and the masse are supporting it. We regret that the papers, of which we can say this, are few.

By the death of Governor Fowle, Lieutenant Governor Thomas M. Holt succeeds to the Governorship. The article in the constitution in reference to the gubernatorial succession provides that in the event of the death of the Governor, removal from office, absence from the State or inability to serve, or the office in any wise become vacant the Lieut. Governor shall become Governor and continue as such until the disability cease or a New Governor be elected and qualify. In the event of the disability of the Lieut. Governor to preside over the Senate, the Senate would elect a President, who, by virtue of his office would become Lieut Governor, and in the absence, disability or death of both Governor and Lieut. Governor, he would succeed to the Governorship until a Governor and Lieut. Governor were elected. If during the recess of the Legislature the Governor and Lieut Governor were both to die, the Secretary of State would convene the State Senate to elect a President, who would become Governor.—Wil. Star.

WATTERSON'S WARNING.

Watterson writes one of his character editorials in the Courier-Journal. In this editorial he speaks for the democracy of the south and west, who are becoming very tired of the way Tammany Hall and the mugwumps carry on in New York.

"To browbeat and cajole, to threaten and entice is the usual stock in trade of the average New York politician, and the democrats of the west and south are mighty tired of it. * *

* The west and south do not mean to stand any more 'd——n nonsense.' We have had too much already. Hereafter, if any clubs are to be used in national democratic conventions, may they always be stuffed ones. They will be in hands of men who mean what they say, and do what they promise, wanting no other reward than the consciousness of the duty done. Let the New York Sun and the New York Herald and other New York newspapers, either democratic or with democratic proclivities, put these plain spoken but kindly intended observations in their pipes clay or cob, as the case may be, and bestow their gentlest respiration upon them. A stitch in time saves nine, and wisdom comes after reflection. Turn over the leaves of your "Poor Richard's Almanac," gentleman, and when found stick a pin.

THE COUNTRY PUBLISHER.

The Best Way to Treat Him.

The public should ever bear in mind, says an exchange, that it is a constant struggle with many country publishers to keep their paper going financially. The business is made up of such small accounts that many people think that the trifling amount due from them does not matter much whether paid promptly or not, forgetting that there may be a thousand entertaining the same idea, and thus withholding from the publisher his hard-earned dollars, while not particularly meaning to work a hardship. The better plan is always to promptly pay in advance for a newspaper the moment the subscription expires.—Printers Album.

NO TYPEWRITER FOR HIM.

Visitor to old lady: Your son writes for the newspapers, I understood. Old lady, with pardonable pride—yes, my boy is mighty smart, if I do say it myself, that shouldn't.

Visitor—Does he use a pseudonym in writing?

Old Lady—Oh, no; he can't write with the pesky machines. He has to do it by hand.—Washington Star.

The Fight to the Death.

so, they were guilty of a serious crime, for which they should have been punished by process of law. Instead of this, they were shot down with Winchesters in the hands of hired assassins who were experts at the business and liked the pastime. They tell us that these men were destroying property and doing much damage, and yet when the smoke of the battle clears away we find that the only serious damage done is in the broken heads, broken legs and riddled bodies of the men shot to pieces by those so-called guards. It was a sad day for the owners of mines in America when the command was given to fire at Morewood. It well be a long, long while before the echo of those guns will die away. The Central Labor Federation at its meeting at No 485 Bowery on last Sunday, in issuing its call for a mass meeting in Cooper Union, speaks as follows:

FELLOW TOILERS—These are critical times. All public means of protection have been turned into agencies of oppression; constitution, law and humanity are trampled under foot in the very halls of justice. Crimes against the life and liberty of workingmen are repeatedly committed, not only by ruffians in the pay of plutocrats, but by the judges the people have elected. Labor is on the verge of complete enslavement. Shall our criminal plutocracy be stopped short in its mad career or shall it be permitted to tear down the Republic? This is the question that you must consider here and now. Let your voice be heard. Let the millions unite against the milionaires. Let them proclaim their unconquerable determination to live or die free men.

This language is not the raving of a fool. There is a ring of earnestness and sullen determination, an accent of bitterness and of despair that bodes no good to the peace of industrial world

3. This problem has already become the great moral problem of the age. It has been transferred from the realm of the purely economic and secular to the moral, The Pope at Rome cannot issue an encyclical and not give large space to the question. It has alienated millions of working people from the church, so that in Protestant churches to-day organized capital and organized labor cannot dwell beneath the same roof. The churches of the rich are becoming more and more exclsively social clubs. The laboring men are therefore cursing the whole church and forming churches outside the church.

4. The masses of the people are becoming more and more restless, discontented, and open to new and combined economic and social propaganda. The two great historic political parties of America are apparently on the eve of distintegration.

No man can forecast the result of the next national contest. It seems impossible that a few months of our political history could have brought us to such a condition of chaos. Yet it is so. The cause of this is not far to seek. It is the confusion incident to the marshalling of the hosts for the battle with private corporate powers. A new political party is to be organized at Cincinnati in May that is almost sure to throw the election of the next President into the House of Representatives. In high political circles this seems now a foregone conclusion. One year ago who would have dreamed of the possibility of such a thing? The next President will be taken from one of the old parties. But after him—the flood! Who will survive? It is among the things possible that the man who is now President of the National Farmer Alliance and Industrial Union may be President of the United States in 1896. Old economic maxims, theories, traditions and superstitions seem to be suddenly going to pieces. The people, the great, ignorant masses of the people, are thinking as never before in the history of the world. Many of their cries are inconsistant and absurd. Many of them know not what they want nor do they know their own friends. They blunder. They stumble. But they are still moving forward. They are being swept forward by the tide of an age movement of the masses upward. It can not be stayed. It may be impeded for a time. If so it will halt only as the flood halts in the narrow gorge. Every moment of delay only piles ton on ton of pressure back of the obstruction. At last the obstruction will break and with the hiss and boom and roar of a Niagara the flood will bear everything before, resistless in its furious sweep.

Federation is the order of the day. Capital learned this secret years ago. By it the economic world was mastered and made capitalistic. The laboring world is now learning federation, and when they have thoroughly learned it the battle of the ages will be fought between the federated giants. Private Millions of Dollars against the Co-operating Millions of Wealth Producers. The result of that conflict, I firmly believe, will be Liberty, not Slavery. Equality in opportunity instead of Despair; Fraternity and Humanity instead of War and Brutality. May God hasten such a day. Followers of Jesus of Nazareth, where will you stand in this struggle of the race? Let us hear in this hour his voice:

"Whosoever would save his life shall lose it."

"Bear ye one another his burdens."

"A new commandment give I unto you, That ye love one another."

A HOMESPUN YARN.

[Scotland Neck Democrat]

A well known Methodist gentleman of Halifax county recently wished to purchase a horse. A well known lawyer living in a different town from the Methodist brother, hearing that his friend wished to purchase a horse, wrote him the following letter, which is more than ordinarily witty for a lawyer.

———, N. C.
April 2, 1891.

———, N. C.

Dear Sir:—I hear that you desire to purchase a perfect horse. I have him. He is four years of age, perfectly gentle, good size, perfect shape. He will work anywhere.

He has been reared by good Baptist hands and will take you through water without a halt; he is enough Methodist not to fear the fire and will take you up to a puffing, snorting, bellowing train without tremor of alarm, he is enough of Episcopalian to believe in good style and he will take you along at a lively rate of speed, with head up and tail elevated and nostrils distended whenever you wish to let the world know that you are in the land of the living. He combines every good quality in his makeup. If you want him for pleasure, your moments of joy would become bliss after a ride behind him; you could dream of the rustle of angel's wings so gently would he part the gentle breezes: if you want him for work, so patiently would he perform duties beneath his dignity, that you would have no record, save one of such patience.

He can walk, trot and gallop in good style. I generally feed him high but I think, judging from his rotund form, that he could subsist on as little as any horse in America, if necessity required.

Of course, I can't tell you what he believes, and I don't know that it is important, but he looks like a horse nhat believes in the doctrine of falling from grace, the sub-treasury plan and the free coinage of silver. I know if you had him he would coin some for you.

It will take $200 to get this valuable animal. He is without an equal. You could write better and faster and easier if you had such a horse; you could sing better; you could sleep sounder; your dreams would be sweeter; your health would be better; you would be a better electioneerer and you could get more votes; you could stay in office as long as you wish, if you only had this valuable animal; he is as wise as a serpent and harmless as a dove. Let me know what you think of him.

Yours truly, ————.

NOT HER TOM.

Mistakes of people are sometimes beautiful things to behold. He was admiring a painting in one of the art rooms in the city when a soft voice at his elbow said: "Come along, Tom, dear! We must be getting home." The young man turned and beheld a dainty girlish figure at his side and a very pretty face turned up to him.

"Oh, pardon me," and the girlish figure hastily drew back. "I thought you were Tom!" And the pink flushes of confused embarrassment reddened the pretty face." So I am Tom." said the young man with amused smile. "Well, you may be—but—you're —not—my —Tom," stammered the embarrassed and rather exasperated young lady, and she gave "Tom" such a look that no doubt made him instantly wish he were "Jerry," or, perhaps, a mild mixture of the two.—New York Times.

KISS CURRENCY.

Agnes, aged 4, called at an uptown grocery store the other day. "I want a 'tick of gum," she announced. After getting the desired article she remarked that she hadn't any penny." "How do you expect to pay for your gum?" queried the vender of delicacies. "Well," announced the youthful philosopher," I will give you a kiss." The kiss was taken, but Agnes stayed, and finally, flushed with success, she made another offer." My cousin Ethel would like a 'tick, and I'll give you another kiss for it." Both girls chewed that afternoon.—Burlington Independent.

States that adopted the federal Constitution, made choice of a spot, or rather district, within which to fix their Seat of Government; but it being lower than the back members (of the Assembly) who hitherto have been most numerous inclined to have it, they have found means to obstruct the measure, but since the Cession of their Western territory, it is supposed that the matter will be revived to good effect.

FRIDAY 22nd:—Under an Escort of horse, and many of the principal gentlemen of Newbern I recommenced my journey, dined at a place called Trenton, which is the head of the boat navigation of the River Trent, which is crossed at this place on a bridge, and lodged at one Shrine's 10 miles farther, both indifferent Houses.

—Remember to come up to see THE CAUCASIAN when at Court next week.

—J. A. Ferrell and others shipped the first strawberries of the season on Tuesday morning.

—Statesville has NOMINATED C. H. Armfield for Mayor. When will Clinton NOMINATE a candidate?

—Mr. J. F. Phillips has been NOMINATED for Mayor of Dunn. When will Clinton hold a convention to nominate a man?

—THE CAUCASIAN will not publish telegrams or letters, purporting to furnish news, unless signed by some responsible party whom we know.

—We were glad to see Mrs. Warren Johnson, who has been suffering with rheumatism, out again. Yesterday was the first time she has been able to be out since December.

—The 72d annual anniversary of the Independent Order of Odd-Fellows will be celebrated in Atkins' Hall Monday night, the 27th instant. The public is invited to be present.

—Sheriff Ellington, of Johnston county, brought a prisoner, one John Samson, (col'd) to jail Tuesday. He was indicted for a cutting affray about Christmas but ran away.

—The stores of Messrs. A. F. Johnson & Co. and of Capt. Wm. A. Johnson, the Clinton Bank and the Carolina Veneer Works were closed Saturday in honor of the late Major W. L. Faison.

—The Carolina Veneer Works is now rushed with orders for crates and berry baskets. Six or seven car loads will be shipped this week. A large order was received yesterday from Charleston.

—A telegram was received yesterday saying that Mr. Howell H. Cobb, of Goldsboro, was dangerously ill, and not expected to live. Mrs. Richard Turlington, his daughter, accompanied by her husband, went up to Goldsboro yesterday.

—Dr. Seawell, the district lecturer, gave us a pleasant call Monday. He subscribed for THE CAUCASIAN. He said that he had occasionally seen a copy of the paper and was so much pleased with it that he wished to receive it regularly.

—"Among the Breakers" to-night at Atkins' Hall at 8 o'clock. After three weeks of preparatory study and rehearsing this strong play will be rendered by our best home talent, The proceeds will be for charitable purposes. But you will get more than the worth of your money. It will be fine. Don't miss it. Let us give them a full house.

—Gossip! How it rages in a little town, where Satan has the exclusive use of so many idle hands and busy tongues. A place where the hands and brains are kept busy with business and enterprise, is not cursed with such a dire social plague and curse. Every shadow of news, however unfounded, is rolled as a sweet morsel under the tongues of these idle incubuses. If the rumor or accusation should be unpleasant the quicker will they leave their business or household to spread and gloat over it. They are no respecters of person, the reputations of none escapes. The Bible condemns the hypocrite as the worst of all sinners, but is he a worse moral blight than the gossiper? "Good Lord deliver us!"

Teachers' Institute.

An Institute for the white Teachers of the county will be held in Clinton the week commencing May 4th. Prof. E. A. Alderman will be here. He is not only a scholar and distinguished educator, but is a most charming; delightful and entertaining man. Come to hear him. You cannot fail to be pleased and interested. This writer was at the State University with him and speaks from personal knowledge.

The Russian Optician at the Murphy House.

Dr. D. S. Harmon, a Russian scientific optician, whose skill has met with great success, is in Clinton for a week or more. His office is in the parlor of the Murphy House. Read under "Paid Reading Notices" what prominent people of this State, whom you know, say of him. If there is anything the matter with your eyes call and see him.

Maj. W. L. Faison Dead.

Maj. Faison is dead. On Friday night he passed gently away and now sleeps in the Clinton Cemetery. His place will be hard to fill. Our people have never been called to mourn the loss of a truer man. Those who knew him intimately loved him and all knew him to hold him in high esteem.

The funeral was Sunday morning. The Sampson Light Infantry met in the armory at 10 o'clock and marched to the time of the muffled drum to the Presbyterian church where the services were conducted. The company entered, marched down either aisle, faced and remained standing. The casket rested at the foot of the altar under a mass of beautiful flowers. The church, the antie-room and the gallery was full, with many crowded outside. The remarks by Dr. Marable were the perfection of grace, beauty and appropriateness. As it had been the request of Major Faison, there was no funeral sermon, but simply the reading of the impressive burial service. The military company headed the procession to the cemetery. The Confederate Veterans of the Sixty-First Regiment, many of whom were present, and who had served shoulder to shoulder with the deceased in the terrible struggles of '61-'65, fell into line by twos at the command of Dr. R. H. Holliday, acting captain. At the cemetery the militarg company and the veterans formed a hollow square around the grave, with a large number of people around. The casket was lowered and Rev. J. W. Turner, at the request of Dr. Marable, concluded the burial ceremony. In a few moments the fresh earth over the sleeping one was covered with a garden of beautiful flowers, placed by tender hands—roses, geraniums, calla lilies and numberless varieties of flowers fashioned into many happy designs, and thus the relatives and numberless friends left the body that once encased a brave soul to wait the resurrection morn.

SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

William Lucius Faison was born October 27th, 1837, in Turkey township, Sampson county, on the old homestead where Dr. Haywood Faison now resides. He was prepared for college at Clinton at and at Prof. Webster's school, in Portsmouth, Virginia. His education was finished at the University of Virginia.

He volunteered in the first company that was formed in this county, known as the Sampson Rangers, in which he served as Lieutenant. This was Company A of the Sixty-First North Carolina Regiment of Clingman's Brigade. Lieut. Faison was soon promoted to adjutant of the regiment, in which capacity he served till almost fatally wounded '64 or early in '65, being in every battle in which that brave regiment engaged. He was twice wounded, first at the siege of Battery Wagner, in South Carolina, in 1864. It was in the terrible and bloody charge on Fort Harrison on the James, below Richmond, where intrepid soldiers marched to the cannons' belching throats, that he was pierced through and through with a ball. The almost fatal bullet entered at the lower part of the abdomen and partially shattered the hip bone at the lower part of the back as it passed through. He was given up to die, but after hanging between life and death for months, nature at last triumphed. But from that day to when he breathed his last on Friday night at 9 o'clock he was a constant sufferer.

In 1865 he married Miss Bettie Peden, daughter of Maj. W. N. Peden. He farmed at the old homestead for several years. He was left a widower in 1875 by the death of his wife. Since that time he has been both father and mother to his three daughters, Mrs N. L. Anderson, and Misses Mamie and Madge, who survive him. He soon entered the mercantile business with Mr. A. F. Johnson, where he continued till elected cashier of the Clinton Loan Association in 1889, which position he held until a few month since when he was forced to resign on account of feeble health.

Major Faison was very fond of millitary affairs—he was a born soldier. In 1883 he organized the Sampson Light Infantry, and dearly beloved by every member, served as captain till promoted to the Major of the Second Regiment in 1890.

Personals.

Miss Rena Micks, who has been visiting in Goldsboro, has returned.

Miss Addie Bizzell, who has been visiting relatives in Winston, returned last week.

Mr. T. M. Lee, who has been in Raleigh several days, having his eyes treated, has returned.

Miss Florence Faison, who has been on a visit of several weeks in Laurinburg and Rockingham, will return to-morrow.

Col. J. F. Bruton, of the Second Regiment N. C. State Guard, of Wilson, was in town Sunday to attend the funeral of the late Maj. W. L. Faison.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Parker and Mr. and Mrs. Pat Cromartie, of Bladen, and Mrs. Thos. Ricaud, of Warsaw, attended the funeral of Maj. Faison.

Messrs. J. F. Westbrook, C. H. Hines and M. Moore, of Faison, were in Clinton Saturday to examine the Clinton Cemetery with a view of modeling the Faison Cemetery after it.

THE RUSSIAN OPTICIAN

Dr. D. S. Harmon now at Red Springs expects to be here soon, perhaps next week. He is a Russian Scientific Opthalmic Optician. He is a not a spectle pedler. He examines the eyes to see what they need—whether both are alike or not and make glasses to correct the precise defect of each eye. If you have trouble in getting glasses to suit you or if you have any defect of the eyes you should have him to examine your eyes. The newspapers speak well of his work where he has been.—Sanford Express, March 19th.

Kinston, N. C. Nov. 23, 1889.

It affords me great pleasure to state that I have been using, for the last twelve months, a pair of Dr. Harmon's Brazilian Pebbles" and have had more pleasure and comfort in them than any eye glasses I ever used. They do not hurt or draw the eye at all.

Lamberton, N. C.,

DEAR SIR;—It is with peculiar pleasure that I add this to your many letters of endorsement

After consulting one of the most eminent specialists in New York City, and with no success. I find that after wearing a pair of your "Pebble Lens" for about one week I am almost entirely relieved of a very persistent headache of several years standing.

yours Very Truly,

JAS. W. McGEE, Jr., M. D.

WILSON, N. C. Jan. 20, 1890.

This is to certify that Dr. D. S. Harmon spent several weeks in Wilson, N. C during which time he met with great success in his specialty—of fitting eye glasses for a large number of people, who have had great difficulty in securing spectacles, which thoroughly remedied their defective eye sight. Especially wts this the case with my wife who has spent considerable money in securing the proper lens to suit her case. Dr. Harmon found it necessary to make five weeks' trial she declares that they cannot be bought for money, so great is the relief to her by reason thereof.

B. F. BIGGS.
Ex-Sheriff Wilson County.

KINSTON, N. C., Dec. 4, 1890.

DR. D. S. HARMON, Dear Sir:—I take pleasure in informing you that my sister has very greatly improved in seeing and has been entirely relieved of pain in temples since using your eyeglasses. Before securing the glasses she had almost given up reading and the practice of music, on account of blurs coming before the eyes, and great pain in the eyes and in the temples. Having now used the glasses for two weeks, she feels almost entirely cured. With much respect I am yours gery truly,

W. D. POLLOCK.

This is a grand opportunity to obtain a first class farm journal free. The American Farmer is a large 16-page illustrated journal, of national circulation, which ranks among the leading agricultural papers. Its highest purpose is the elevation and ennobling of agriculture through the higher and broader education of the men and women engaged in its pursuits. The regular subscription price of the American Farmer, is $1.00 per year. It cost you nothing. From any one number ideas can be obtained that will be worth thrice the subscription price to you or members of your household, yet you get it free. Call and see sample copy.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

PINEY GROVE.

There was a family reunion on Sunday, the 12th, at the residence of Mrs. James Sutton. A few friends were invited to witness the assemblage of children, grand children and great-grand children. There was a host gathered around the sumptuous and richly laden table, which was prepared in the grove. The happy laugh of the aged mingled with the merry chattering of the young made the occasion indeed pleasant. It is the wish of this writer that the influence of this family reunion will be to strengthen the bonds of all family relations.

Dawson and Henry Jordan, sons of Mr. John Jordan, who lives in Wayne county, near the Sampson line, became engaged in a quarrel about the removal of some cotton seed last Friday morning. Henry striking Dawson with a hatchet just below the ear, cutting the large vein in the neck. He died in about three hours. Henry was about eighteen years old, Dawson twenty-one.

Teachers' Institute.

An Institute for White Teachers, conducted by Prof. E. A. Aldermin, will be held in Clinton, Sampson county, N. C., during the week commencing May 4th, 1891.

The School Law requires all the White Public School Teachers of the county to attend continuously the sessions of the Institute, and on failure to do so, they shall not be certified as Teachers for the ensuing year.

Teachers of other schools, members of the various School Committees and the public are urgently requested to attend the Institute.

Efforts will be made to have lectures delivered on some subjects of interest every evening.

Respectfully,

ISHAM ROYAL,
Co. Superintendent.

A Dangerous Period.

As the season moves swiftly toward the boundary lines that lie between winter and spring, it frequently happens that the human system, which has borne the strain of winter, shows signs of relaxation. In all ages this period has been noted as a dangerous one, especially to those who have weak constitutions. A course of the great blood purifier and tonic, S. S. S., will enable the most delicate to face the season's changes with impunity. It is a medicine that not only strengthens the weak and the delicate, but is an additional safeguard for those who consider themselves strong.

MAJ. W. L. FAISON.

Died, at his home, in Clinton, N. C., on the night of the 18th, Maj. W. L. Faison, of the Second Regiment of the State Guard. He organized Company "A" of the Second Regiment of the State Guard, and was the popular and efficient Captain of that company, until he was made Major of the Regiment. Being a Confederate Veteran he was well fitted to render valuable service to the State Troops.

Maj. Faison was one of those men where character is a real inheritance to the friends of God and humanity. There was no fiction of conventionality, nor suspicion of insincerity. To know him at one time, was to know him at all times. With a nature brave and gentle, he was thoroughly independent, and yet always kind and sympathetic. He promptly condemned the evil-doer, but was ever ready to condone the offences of the weak and ignorant. As a citizen he was ever loyal—as a christian always in his place. With him there was but one kind of religion—the same at church and in business. Absolutely without obtrusiveness, and with but little demonstrativeness, he was pacific and modest constant and true. His life was one of those secret forces which are known, not by the noise they make, but the power they exert. His death is a great loss to the moral strength of the community in which he lived. For a number of years he has been an Elder in the Clinton church. He died as he had lived, with the universal confidence and affection of his congregation.

He was buried on Sunday morning with military honors amidst a great multitude of friends. We wept over his grave, but wept in the sunshine of immortal hope. He died in his 52 year, and leaves three daughters to mourn the loss of a true father. B. F. M.

BETTER THAN CRYSTAL.

ords: Then strike hands with your Lord the King while I pronounce you everlastingly one. Or if you think with Job that it is a jewel, then put it on your hand like a ring, on your neck like a bead, on your forehead like a star, while looking into the mirror of God's word you acknowledge "the crystal cannot equal it."

RELIGION'S TRANSFORMATION.

Again, religion is superior to the crystal in its transformations. The diamond is only a crystallization of coal. Carbonate of lime rises till it becomes calcite of aragonite. Red oxide of copper crystallizes into cubes and octahedrons. Those crystals which adorn our persons, and our homes, and our museums have only been resurrected from forms that were far from lustrous. Scientists for ages have been examining these wonderful transformations. But I tell you in the gospel of the Son of God there is a more wonderful transformation. Over souls, by reason of sin black as coal and hard as iron, God by his comforting grace stoops and says, "They shall be mine in the day when I make up my jewels."

"What," say you, "will God wear jewelry?" If he wanted it he could make the stars of heaven his belt and have the evening cloud for the sandals of his feet, but he does not want that adornment. He will not have that jewelry. When God wants jewelry he comes down and digs it out of the depths and darkness of sin. These souls are all crystallizations of mercy. He puts them on and he wears them in the presence of the whole universe. He wears them on the hand that was nailed, over the heart that was pierced, on the temples that were stung. "They shall be mine," saith the Lord, "in the day when I make up my jewels." Wonderful transformation! "The crystal cannot equal it." There she is, a waif of the street; but she shall be a sister of charity. There he is, a sot in the ditch; but he shall preach the gospel. There, behind the bars of a prison, but he shall reign with Christ forever. Where sin abounded grace shall much more abound. The carbon becomes the solitaire. "The crystal cannot equal it."

Now, I have no liking for those people who are always enlarging in Christian meetings about their early dissipation. Do not go into the particulars, my brothers. Simply say you were sick, but make no display of your ulcers. The chief stock in trade of some ministers and Christian workers seems to be their early crimes and dissipations. The number of pockets you picked and the number of chickens you stole make very poor prayer meeting rhetoric. Besides that, it discourages other Christian people who never got drunk or stole anything. But it is pleasant to know that those who were farthest down have been brought highest up. Out of infernal serfdom into eternal liberty. Out of darkness into light. From coal to the solitaire. "The crystal cannot equal it."

THE JEWELS OF ETERNITY.

But, my friends, the chief transforming power of the Gospel will not be seen in this world, and not until heaven breaks upon the soul. When that light falls upon the soul then you will see the crystals. Oh, what a magnificent setting for these jewels of eternity! I sometimes hear people representing heaven in a way that is far from attractive to me. It seems almost a vulgar heaven as they represent it, with great blotches of color and bands of music making a deafening racket. John represents heaven as exquisitely beautiful. Three crystals. In one place he says, "Her light was like a precious stone, clear as crystal." In another place he says, "I saw a pure river from under the throne, clear as crystal."

In another place he says, "Before the throne there was a sea of glass clear as crystal." Three crystals! John says crystal atmosphere. That means health. Balm of eternal June. What weather after the world's east wind! No rack of storm clouds. One breath of that air will cure the worst tubercle. Crystal light on all the leaves. Crystal light shimmering on the topaz of the temples. Crystal light tossing in the plumes of the equestrians of heaven on white horses. But "the crystal cannot equal it." John says crystal river. That means joy. Deep and ever rolling. Not one drop of the Thames or the Hudson or the Rhine to soil it. Not one tear of human sorrow to imbitter it. Crystal, the rain out of which it was made. Crystal, the bed over which it shall roll and ripple. Crystal, its infinite surface. But "the crystal cannot equal it." John says crystal sea. That means multitudinously vast. Vast in rapture. Rapture vast as the sea, deep as the sea, strong as the sea, ever changing as the sea. Billows of beauty, blue with skies that were never clouded, and green with depths that were never fathomed. Arctics and Antarctics and Mediterraneans and Atlantics and Pacifics in crystalline magnificence. Three crystals. Crystal light falling on a crystal river. Crystal river rolling into a crystal sea. But the "crystal cannot equal it."

"Oh," says some one, putting his hand over his eyes, "can it be that I who have been in so much sin and trouble will ever come to those crystals?" Yes, it may be—it will be. Heaven we must have, whatever else we have or have not, and we come here to get it. "How much must I pay for it?" you say. You will pay for it just as much as the coal pays to become the diamond. In other words, nothing. The same Almighty power that makes the crystal in the mountain will change your heart, which is harder than stone, for the promise is, "I will take away your stony heart and I will give you a heart of flesh."

STOP BATTING THE DOOR.

"Oh," says some one, "it is just the doctrine I want; God is to do everything and I am to do nothing." My brother, it is not the doctrine you want. The coal makes no resistance. It hears the resurrection voice in the mountain and it comes to crystallization; but your heart resists. The trouble with you, my brother, is the coal wants to stay coal. I do not ask you to throw open the door and let Christ in. I only ask that you stop bolting it and barring it. Oh, my friends, we will have to get rid of our sins. I will have to get rid of my sins and you will have to get rid of your sins.

What will we do with our sins among the three crystals? The crystal atmosphere would display our pollution. The crystal river would be befouled with our touch. The crystal sea would whelm us with its glistening surge. Transformation now or no transformation at all. Give sin full chance in your heart, and the transformation will be downward instead of upward. Instead of a crystal it will be a cinder. In the days of Carthage a Christian girl was condemned to die for her faith, and a boat was bedaubed with tar and pitch and filled with combustibles and set on fire, and the Christian girl was placed in the boat, and the wind was off shore and the boat floated away with its precious treasure. No one can doubt that boat landed at the shore of heaven.

Sin wants to put you in a fiery boat and shove you off in an opposite direction—off from peace, off from God, off from heaven, everlastingly off; and the port toward which you would sail would be a port of darkness, and the guns that would greet you would be the guns of despair, and the flags that would wave at your arrival would be the black flags of death. O, my brother, you must either kill sin or sin will kill you. It is no wild exaggeration when I say that any man or woman that wants to be saved may be saved. Tremendous choice! A thousand people are choosing this moment between salvation and destruction, between light and darkness, between heaven and hell, between charred ruin and glorious crystallization.

A Cheering Word for the Husband.

One of these days things may work round again to an appreciation of the Present Man as distinguished from the Coming Woman, who makes so large a figure in literature. Take him all in all the Helpful Husband is about the finest character of the day. There has been a certain exhilaration for the woman in stepping outside her home, but for the man, what patience, what subduing of pride, what building up of new ideals! For once the character of the sexes seem to be reversed; the bravery of adventure is the woman's, the watching for results the man's.

Where can one find a finer development of chivalry than in men, and they are not few in number, who, against their desires, against their instincts, against their reason, are letting their wives support themselves in marriage, are even urging them and aiding them to walk in directions which it pains them to see them walk, because they are farsighted enough or loving and loyal enough to leave even the woman who is dearest to them to work out her own salvation? The man who does this knows that he is misunderstood, knows that he is criticised, and his part—the silent part—is quite as plucky as many of the most applauded displays of feminine energy and enterprise.—New York Recorder.

Cat Against Fox.

One early morning, during a snowstorm, I was starting for the hills. I noticed the footprints of a cat upon the fresh snow. I guessed the cat was my own, a strong, black tom. Curious to know how far his peregrinations might have extended, I made up my mind to find out, if possible. I had not, however, followed the track more than a few hundred yards when I came upon what appeared to have been a desperate struggle, and which at first sight I took to be the marks of puss and an unfortunate hare or rabbit, but upon closer examination I found the antagonist must have been a fox.

The combat, as long as it lasted, must have been a severe one, as it was quite clear from the marks on the snow that one or both of the animals were down several times. I am inclined to believe that Reynard came off second best in the affray, as it could be seen that he retreated back the way he came, whereas puss continued on his wanderings until he entered a thick plantation, where I had to give up pursuit. When I got home I found the cat had got home before me, and was apparently none the worse for his morning's adventure.—Land and Water.

Liked Going Out.

"What part of the service did you like best?" queried Mrs. Reredos after church.

"The recessional," returned Mr. R. —Puck.

Message Bearing Swallows.

John Desbouvrie, who resides at Roubaix in France, has exhibited there fifteen swallows that he has trained after the manner of carrier pigeons. The swallows were set free, each one marked with a colored ribbon, and they dispersed in all directions. In fifteen minutes later the first one returned, and perched on one of Desbouvrie's fingers; one after another the others came back in quick succession. Desbouvrie is of the opinion that swallows are far superior to pigeons for the carrier service in time of war. Their flight is higher and swifter, and they are more reliable, smarter and more easily fed.

They need not rest when flying long distances in order to partake of food, because they can do so on the wing. They are also trained with greater facility than pigeons. Desbouvrie has also succeeded in retaining a number of swallows during the winter in perfect liberty, and their migratory inclinations did not carry them southward, so that even this obstacle would not interfere with the systematic training of swallows for the carrier service. —Toronto Globe.

Drawing an Inference.

"You have been so long about the minister's hand, John, that I dare say you could preach a sermon yourself now," said a gentleman one day to a beadle of his acquaintance.

"Oh, na, sir," replied John; "I couldna preach a sermon." Then, after a brief pause he remarked, "But perhaps I could draw an inference, though."

"Well, John," said the gentleman, humoring the quiet vanity of the beadle, "what inference could you draw from this text: 'A wild ass * * * snuffeth up the wind at her pleasure?'" (Jere. ii, 24.)

"Weel," replied John, "the only natural like inference that I could draw frae it is just this—that she wad snuff a lang time afore she would fatten on it."—Gentleman's Magazine.
